Hawk Mountain Sanctuary, PA, and Pronatura-Veracruz, MX, Invite You to Join them for the 2015 River of Raptors
Hawk-Watching Trip “of a lifetime”, September 29th to October 7th

(Optional trip extension to explore southern Veracruz for the northernmost rain forest in the Americas, October 7th to 10<sup>h</sup>)

Each fall season an average of four and a half million hawks of 30 species are recorded from two count sites in central Veracruz, Mexico, including greater than two million Broad-winged Hawks. They squeeze into a 15-mile-wide bottleneck between the mountains and the Gulf of Mexico – along with mind-boggling numbers of other migrants: Wood Storks, Anhingas, White Pelicans, Scissor-tailed Flycatchers, etc. Counts in recent years have confirmed that Veracruz is host to the most concentrated raptor migration in the world and receives over 90% of the population of Swainson’s and Broad-winged hawks, and Mississippi Kites.

From Hawk Mountain’s Senior Biologist Laurie Goodrich’s journal:

The hawks swirl off of the hills in the mid-morning heat rising into small streams then merging into rivers, spiraling overhead. On every horizon kettles are forming, merging together into rivers of raptors. There are birds everywhere with layers of kettles swirling in different directions overhead--Turkey Vultures and Swainson’s below and Broadwings above--an incredible sight! Everyone is in awe. Excitement is tangible.”

Hawk Mountain helped initiate the Veracruz River of Raptors Project in 1991 in collaboration with HawkWatch International and Mexican conservationists. Through their efforts, the site has grown into a world-renown monitoring, education, and conservation initiative. The work has been led by Pronatura-Veracruz for more than 20 years and in 2006 they opened the first-ever bird observatory-nature center in eastern Mexico.

Participant numbers are limited to ensure a quality experience for everyone. Participants will observe the world-renowned raptor and wading bird migration, view Mexican specialties and wintering birds, and have special introductions to Pronatura's on-the ground conservation efforts in central Veracruz.

In addition to hawk-watching, the Hawk Mountain tour group will explore local habitats for some of the many species of birds to be found in central Veracruz. Several raptor species such as Lesser Yellow-headed Vulture, Laughing and Aplomado Falcons (see left), and Snail Kite will be seen as well as other spectacular birds, such as Double-striped Thick-Knee, Vermillion Flycatcher, Blue-crowned Motmot, Squirrel Cuckoo, Ferruginous Pygmy Owl, and possibly Blue Mockingbird. The butterflies in Veracruz are as exciting as the birds. Leaders will have bird and butterfly guides along for all the forays.

An optional extension will visit the Catemaco area in southern Veracruz, including the northernmost rain forest in the Americas. Birds to be found there include White Hawk, Black Hawk-Eagle, Ornate Hawk-Eagle, Grey-headed Kite, Bare-throated Tiger-Heron, Red-lore and White-fronted Parrot, Black-and-White Owl, Long-tailed Hermit, Violet Sabrewing, Violaceous and Collared Trogon, Keel-billed Toucan, Collared Aracari, and other forest birds. Another 45 new species will be expected in this extension.

with the HMS travel agent, Sandy Green of Uniglobe Berkleigh Travel, to get the best rate and for coordinating group arrival in Houston (call Sandy at (610) 683-8880). From Houston we will fly together direct into Veracruz so we can arrive together. Contact Laurie before making any reservations.

Deposits/Payment: Trip is commonly limited to 12 adult participants on a first-come, first serve basis. If less than eight participants sign-up, we may merge our trip with another or cancel. To hold a slot on the trip register through Hawk Mountain or call/email trip coordinator Laurie Goodrich at 570-943-3411 x 106 (goodrich@hawkmtn.org) and submit a $500 deposit by June 1, 2015. Balance of payment is due August 15, 2015. The refund policy is attached.

Trip Philosophy:

The Veracruz Hawk-Watching Excursion is designed for the hawk-watcher/conservationist/bird-watcher. We have designed the trip to provide maximum opportunities to view the spectacle of the migration, to benefit local raptor conservation efforts and to gain an appreciation for the culture of central Mexico away from the tourist destinations. We will stay in the local community to ensure our dollars support the local people and allow the participants to experience Mexican culture first-hand. Flexibility and good humor are required to make the tour a successful adventure for each participant.

It is important to recognize that Mexican small town hotels and restaurants may not all be on par with U.S. AAA standards. However, they hold a unique charm and atmosphere that you will find enchanting. We will ensure that tour participants are given clean, safe rooms with fans or air-conditioning and treated to excellent, healthy local fare. Facilities are informal and friendly. Previous tour groups have said they enjoyed being away from the normal tourist routine and long to return.

The trip schedule is very full, but participants are encouraged to take a morning or afternoon off from the group and rest or relax on their own to make the trip at your own pace. Cardel and Jalapa are safe and accessible for exploration.

Tour Leaders:

Laurie Goodrich, Ph.D., Senior Biologist at Hawk Mountain, is one of the co-founders of the Veracruz River of Raptors project and a project scientific advisor. She has led trips to the region since 1994 and never tires of watching the migration. She received her Master's in Ecology from Rutgers University and Ph.D. from Penn State University. She oversees the hawk migration counts and conducts research on raptor migration.

In Veracruz, the group will be joined by a bilingual ornithologist, Eduardo Martinez, long-time coordinator of the River of Raptors hawk count and banding efforts. Eduardo has extensive birding and guiding experience and happily shares his abundant natural and cultural knowledge with our tours. Trip logistics will be coordinated by Pronatura Veracruz and their staff in cooperation with Laurie

Goodrich, River of Raptors co-founder.

Because of Hawk Mountain's close relationship with Pronatura, other Pronatura staff may join the group periodically as well.

VERACRUZ TRIP 2015 ITINERARY

The Itinerary may be re-arranged depending on weather and hawk-watching and birding opportunities. However most of the sites listed below will be visited by the group. The schedule is very full, but participants are encouraged to take a morning or afternoon off from the group to recharge and rest.

September 29th— Travel Day/Veracruz overnight

Fly to Veracruz City via Houston. Meet guides and group in Houston and arrive at Veracruz City Airport to travel by van to Veracruz City for an overnight along the Gulf of Mexico.

September 30th, Hotel Bienvenidos, Cardel

Early morning bird walk followed by sumptuous breakfast. Look for Ferruginous Pygmy-Owl, gulls, terns, seabirds, and songbirds along the beach and in hotel gardens. Travel to Cardel and arrive at Hotel Bienvenidos, check-in and visit rooftop hawkwatch for afternoon flights. Late afternoon visit to Zempoala ruins, a pre-Columbian settlement of the Totanac culture. Dinner in local restaurant and possible evening program on Rio de Rapaces project including an introduction to the migrating raptors.

October 1st, Hotel Bienvenidos, Cardel

Early morning birding visit to Playa Juan Angel to look for Aplomado Falcons, Fork-tailed Flycatcher, Scissor-tailed Flycatcher and assorted wading and shore birds. Hawk watch on roof for most of the day or rest and explore Cardel. Visit Hernan Cortez's house and the first church in the Americas in late afternoon. Evening boat ride on La Antigua river to spot kingfishers, shorebirds, terns, pelicans, followed by dinner in La Antigua open air restaurant.

October 2nd, Hotel in Xalapa

Early morning visit to La Mancha Biological Field Station on the Gulf to look for Laughing Falcons, Sandwich Terns, Common Black Hawk, songbirds and butterflies. Back to the hotel by late morning to pack and have lunch. An afternoon of hawk-watching at Chichicaxtle, then head to Xalapa for evening. Dinner at comfortable restaurant. Xalapa is a cooler, higher elevation site and will provide exposure to some of the diversity of birdlife of inland Veracruz as well as the Veracruz local culture. You may need light jacket in evening.

Imagine one million hawks passing in one week...

October 3rd, Hotel in Xalapa

Early morning bird walk in Macuiltepetl Ecological Park, a preserved forest located on an ancient extinct volcano in center city. We will seek out the many resident species that may be found here including the Blue Mockingbird and Blue-crowned Motmot, and Green Jays. A brunch in town and travel to world-renown Museo de Antropologia to view the excellent Olmec exhibits. Late afternoon visit to Xico to view historic waterfalls and see resident swifts and possibly Bat Falcon and parrots. Dinner at a local restaurant before returning to Xalapa hotel for evening.

October 4th, Hotel Bienvenidos, Cardel

An early breakfast and morning birding trip to high elevation pine-woodland forest above Xalapa to look for Red Warbler, Russet Nightingale Thrush, White-eared Hummingbird and other mountain birds. A box lunch on the bus and travel to east to Chichicaxtle to enjoy a late afternoon of hawk-watching and visit with Pronatura staff to learn about conservation efforts on behalf of migrating birds. Check into Hotel Bienvenidos and enjoy a relaxed evening dinner at a local restaurant.

October 5th, Hotel Bienvenidos, Cardel

Early morning birding at El Mirador, a shade coffee plantation with a mature forest. Many forest specialties like Ivory-billed Woodcreeper, Tropical Parula, Gartered Trogon and more are possible; a special lunch will be served on site. Return for afternoon of hawk-watching at Chichicaxtle or Cardel and dinner at a local restaurant.

October 6th, Fly Home or begin trip extension.

An early morning departure to the airport, find continental breakfast at airport. Bid hasta luego to new and old friends alike! Catemaco extension begins with bus ride

October 6th, Hotel Colonial, Veracruz City.

Pack up and leave early in morning. Visit Las Barrancas grasslands and Alvarado wetlands south of Veracruz City. Look for Double-striped Thick Knees, Yellow-headed Vulture, Snail Kite, Limpkin, American Bittern, swallows, and other marsh birds. Head north to Veracruz City by mid-afternoon. Visit waterfront and zocalo and shop for souvenirs. Dinner on the zocalo for the last night the entire group is together.

south to Lake Catemaco and Los Tuxtlas forest.

Optional Catemaco Extension
October 7th to 10th

Enjoy the southern Veracruz forests and wetlands and their abundant birdlife...

October 7th, La Finca, Catemaco. After breakfast and goodbyes to friends heading home, we travel south to have lunch in Tlacotalpan, a World Heritage town along the Papaloapan river and do as much birding along the road as we can. Arrive at Catemaco for late day birding at hotel grounds and dinner.

October 8th, La Finca, Catemaco. Visit to tropical lowland forest at the UNAM biological field station to look for forest species including White Hawk and species of woodcreepers, toucans, parrots, trogons, and hummingbirds. Lunch then trip on Lagoon Sontecomapan to look for Gray-necked Wood Rail, Violet Sabrewing, Pygmy Kingfisher, Bare-throated Tiger Heron and other wetland species.

October 9th, Hotel Colonial, Veracruz. Ruiz Cortinez and bird in the cloud forest and highlands northeast of Catemaco. Wintering migrants as well as resident birds such as Tuxtla Quail Dove and Long-tailed Sabrewing as well as orioles, honeycreepers, woodpeckers, and woodcreepers. Head north back to Veracruz for dinner on Veracruz city central square.

October 10th. Head out to airport early. Say goodbye to new friends! Leave from airport on early morning flight and savor all the special moments of the trip.
